Overview of LANC Services

LANC is a statewide, nonprofit law firm that provides free legal services in civil matters to low-income people. Our organization has remained fully operational throughout COVID-19. LANC attorneys go to court and meet with clients in person as needed. We also provide self-help materials in the form of videos, written materials, and online clinics. These materials can provide you with the detailed information you need to handle some basic legal issues without hiring an attorney.

Self-Help Clinic Materials

Visit legalaidnc.org/clinics

Due to the Coronavirus crisis, we now hold all of our clinics electronically using Facebook Live and Zoom. See pages 4 and 5 for detailed info regarding these online presentations. All clinics remain free and open to the public.

You can visit legalaidnc.org/get-help or call 1.866.219.LANC (5262) to find out if you're eligible for brief service and advice on individual cases and extended services such as representation in court.

Do you need help as a result of a natural disaster?

After a hurricane makes landfall, storm clouds quickly dissipate, but the recovery process for homeowners can take years. In the midst of what is predicted to be an above-average Atlantic hurricane season, our Disaster Relief Project is helping remove legal barriers that disaster survivors may experience during the recovery process. We also provide estate planning services and other info to help folks prepare for the future.

One client's story: In 2018, Hurricane Florence damaged our client's home beyond repair. When he tried to get assistance to rebuild, he couldn't prove ownership of the land he had long lived on because he inherited it from family who passed away without a will. This method of inheritance, although legally just as valid, often does not provide the documentation that many organizations, like FEMA, require. Families who have lived on the same land for generations may be unable to prove ownership to the satisfaction of authorities in charge of distributing aid. An attorney from our Disaster Relief Project helped this client formally document ownership, and he recently received the funding needed to build a new house.

This project also helps survivors of natural disasters by advocating for clients in benefits application and appeals processes, standing up for survivors who were victimized by fraudulent contractors or bad-actor landlords, assisting community groups that provide long-term recovery, and more. To learn more and access resources, visit legalaidnc.org/disaster.

Paul Newby Elected 30th Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina

First joining the Supreme Court of North Carolina in 2004, Paul Newby was elevated to the highest judicial office in our state in the 2020 election. In his capacity as Chief Justice, Newby is head of the North Carolina Judicial Branch and is entrusted with leading its more than 6,000 elected officials and employees. The mission of the Judicial Branch is to provide open courts for the administration of justice without favor, denial, or delay.

Paul Newby has written more than 300 opinions as a Justice of North Carolina's highest court.

Newby has written more than 300 opinions as a Justice of North Carolina's highest court. Among his many related areas of service, he chairs the North Carolina Equal Access to Justice Commission. The purpose of the Commission is to overcome barriers to justice and meet legal needs through collaboration and problem solving. Newby is also an adjunct professor at Campbell University School of Law, where he teaches courses on appellate practice and state constitutional law. He travels across the state educating citizens about North Carolina history and the role of government in our lives.

Need Help Understanding Your Legal Issue? Visit LawHelpNC.org

LawHelpNC.org provides you with easy-to-understand legal facts and resources. The site offers detailed information on 16 areas of North Carolina law, from family and juvenile to wills and life planning. By learning about the legal issues affecting you and your family, you become better prepared to represent yourself in court (pro se representation) or work with an attorney to resolve your problem.

You can type your issue (for example, “appeal an eviction”) into the search feature of the site or use the pull-down menu under the tab “Understand Your Legal Issue” to be taken to a page of helpful links on that topic. These links lead you to various types of information: free clinics LANC offers on the topic, a brief overview of the issue, and self-help “interviews” that explain the law and help you prepare court forms.

Click on “Online Legal Forms” for quick access to forms of the North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts (NCAOC). Before you fill out any of the forms, learn all you can about your legal issue to help ensure you use the forms correctly. Examples of forms you can fill out online include: cover sheet for child support cases, order on child custody mediation, complaint and motion for domestic violence protective order, civil summons, and notice of appeal to district court. Many forms are available in Spanish.

Visit LawHelpNC.org for straightforward information on the following legal topics:

Family and Juvenile	Disaster Assistance
Housing	Economic Development
Money and Taxes	Education and Schools
Government Benefits	Farmworkers
Veterans and Military	Immigration
Work and Jobs	Individual Rights
Criminal Law	Wills and Life Planning
Health and Disability	The Legal System

LawHelpNC.org allows you to:

- Access online forms and produce pro se documents.
- Take advantage of self-help resources like free clinics, educational videos, and guided tours called “interviews” that help you fill out court forms.
- Search for a lawyer who can help with your needs.

LawHelpNC.org is a collaborative effort by LANC, the North Carolina Equal Justice Alliance, the North Carolina Bar Association Foundation, and Probono.net.

In 2017, 71% of low-income Americans experienced a civil legal problem.

Only 14% of these legal needs were met.

LANC offers volunteer opportunities for lawyers, law students, paralegals, and others to donate their time and talents to serve North Carolinians in need. Our volunteer programs include:

Eviction Negotiation Program: In anticipation of a spike in eviction filings due to the economic impact of COVID-19, LANC is partnering with private attorney volunteers to negotiate with landlords to prevent evictions for non-payment of rent. Volunteer attorneys may conduct all their services remotely.

Lawyer on the Line (LOTL): A partnership with NC Bar Foundation, LOTL gives private attorneys an easy and rewarding way to provide basic legal advice and service to Legal Aid clients through one-hour phone interviews. You choose the number of referrals you receive (up to four per month) and the types of cases.

Volunteer Lawyer Program: You choose how often to take Legal Aid clients cases involving extended representation and litigation services. We need your help in these areas of law and others: domestic violence, expunctions, immigration, and veterans benefits. Necesitamos abogados que hablen español.

Self-Help Clinic Volunteer Program: LANC coordinates legal clinics on a variety of topics during which volunteer attorneys answer general legal questions from participants. See p. 4 for more information regarding our clinics, which are free and open to the public.

WE CAN HELP YOU fulfill your professional responsibility of providing 50 hours of legal services annually for those unable to pay, as laid out in Rule 6.1 of the NC State Bar's Rules of Professional Conduct. LANC provides you with training (for CLE credit in some cases), mentor support, and malpractice insurance, as appropriate.

IF YOU'RE INTERESTED in joining our pro bono team or supporting our work, please visit legalaidnc.org/give-help today. Your expertise can make a significant difference in someone's life!

LANC Partners with the NC HOPE Program to Prevent Evictions

LANC collaborates with numerous other community organizations to increase our capacity to help low-income North Carolinians. One such partner is the NC Housing Opportunities and Prevention of Evictions (HOPE) Program, which provides rent and utility assistance. The state initially launched the HOPE Program last fall, using flexible funds from the federal CARES Act to help ensure that low-income families struggling during the pandemic could stay in their homes.

Are you struggling to pay rent or utilities?

The HOPE Program may be able to help.

In June 2021, the HOPE Program announced that increased assistance would become available to families who continue to need help due to the pandemic. Starting August 1, the monthly rent award limit increased by 30%. This should allow the program to cover approximately 95% of all rent assistance that very low-income tenants request. The utility award limit increased by 100%, meaning it should cover nearly 90% of all past-due amounts that program applicants request.

What you need to know:

- Even if you applied for assistance during the first phase of the HOPE Program, you are eligible to reapply for more assistance.
- As of the beginning of August, the program is also accepting tenant referrals from landlords regarding their tenants who are struggling.
- Applications for help with utilities only are not being accepted during this phase of the program.
- The monthly rent award limit has increased by 30%; the utility award limit has doubled. These new limits apply to all new applications received, including those reapplying for assistance.
- The HOPE Program serves 88 North Carolina counties. The remaining 12 counties and five Native American tribes are served by local emergency rent/utility programs that receive funds directly from the federal government.

TENANTS AND LANDLORDS can call the HOPE Call Center at 888.ASK.HOPE (888.927.5467)

You can also visit hope.nc.gov to request assistance.

The call center is open Monday through Friday from 8AM to 5PM.
English-and Spanish-speaking specialists are available to assist callers.

Starting Over After a Storm

With the help of Don Pocock and Chelsea Barnes, volunteer lawyers from Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP in Winston-Salem, Amy from Kernersville rebuilt her life after a storm destroyed her mobile home. Amy knew dead trees on the mobile home lot could cause trouble. She contacted the landlord, who acknowledged the trees were a problem but refused to cut them down. When Tropical Storm Michael came through in October of 2018, a tree fell on her home, making it unlivable. Amy contacted LANC, and the Disaster Relief Project volunteers took the case and demanded $12,000 for her loss. After some back-and-forth between the landlord and his insurance company, Amy received a check for the full amount. Our Disaster Relief Project helps disaster survivors overcome the legal barriers standing in the way of a full and just recovery. See p. 3 for more information.

Hope for Families Facing Eviction

When Briana's rent went up this past February, she couldn't keep up with the cost. She moved into a hotel with her niece until she could find a more affordable place. Little did she know the pandemic would wreak havoc on local housing and result in her losing shifts at work. Though Briana worked as many hours as possible, she fell behind on her payments at the hotel. Her room key was deactivated.

Her niece had to stay in the room alone while Briana worked since she didn't have a key. Despite the protections in place from the CARES Act, each day the hotel staff demanded she pay or leave immediately.

Briana called our Durham Eviction Diversion Program for help. With Legal Aid's intervention, her key was reactivated, and she avoided an eviction filing. We prevented the hotel from engaging in any debt collection, which could hurt her finances in the long term. With a renewed sense of security, Briana found an apartment. In July, she moved into a place where she and her family can weather the pandemic safely.

The Durham Eviction Diversion Program provides help for families on the brink of homelessness. Now more than ever, it's important to keep families safely housed in our community.

Know Your Rights: Food Stamp (SNAP) Benefits Are Increasing

In an effort to keep pace with actual current food prices, food stamp benefits are increasing for all recipients. These changes to the food stamp program, also known as SNAP (the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program), are the first of their kind in more than 45 years. Many families across the state who are struggling to keep food on the table during the pandemic will benefit.

According to the USDA (the federal agency that oversees the food stamp program), the average benefit will increase by $36 per person, per month—or about $1.20 per day—for Fiscal Year 2022. This increase begins on October 1, 2021 and does not include any additional funds provided as part of pandemic relief.

SNAP helps feed 1 of every 8 Americans each month. The program increases food security, including supporting families with children who have been disproportionately impacted by hunger during COVID.

The average SNAP benefit is increasing by $36 per person, per month, beginning on October 1, 2021.

October Is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month (DVAM)

Each October since 1987, organizations across the country raise awareness about the prevalence of domestic violence and its impact on families and communities. Community events are organized to educate and connect those concerned about this issues. Over the past several decades, advocates have made tremendous progress supporting survivors, holding abusers accountable, and creating and updating legislation that protects the rights of those suffering from abuse. Domestic violence agencies located across the state now provide assistance to survivors in all 100 North Carolina counties. Services include 24-hour confidential crisis hotlines, emergency shelter, and support groups and counseling. The North Carolina Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NCCADV) maintains a list of many of these services. To get involved or learn more about available services, visit nccadv.org.

To access help for yourself or a loved one, visit nccadv.org on a computer that isn't being monitored or contact LANC at 1.866.219.5262.

LANC Creates New Position: Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Officer

LANC is pleased to announce that Tonia D. Trammell, MEd, JD has become our first Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Officer. Before taking on this new role, she was on our staff for three years and active in our diversity working group.

Trammell brings more than a decade of DEI experience to the position. She spent most of her career prior to her tenure with LANC working on race equity, as well LGBTQ+ equality, religion equity, and disability rights. As an adjunct professor, she taught a cultural competency course for social workers and human service providers, helping them develop their skills serving diverse populations.

A large percentage of LANC clients come from marginalized backgrounds, including chronic poverty. "I've always been drawn to LANC's work helping diverse groups achieve equity," says Trammell. "While I was in law school, I worked as a volunteer for a homelessness prevention project. I provided information on basic North Carolina landlord-tenant law to people who were facing eviction and couldn't afford an attorney."

Trammell recently completed a DEI assessment with LANC staff. The results indicate they generally find their work environment to be inclusive and supportive. They are eager to move forward with further applying an equity lens to their work, and Trammell plans to develop a cultural competency curriculum to provide practical tools to facilitate creating safe spaces for both staff and clients.

Staff suggestions for improvements from the assessment have been compiled in a DEI Action Plan, which is being woven into LANC's current strategic plan. Some objectives are being met immediately, with others being on-going and long-term.

Trammell's personal mission as DEI Officer is to be a catalyst for significant, lasting improvements in work policy and procedures that further equity and reflect the organization's core beliefs. "DEI has to be threaded throughout all that we do at LANC," she says. "In order for LANC to be most impactful in the services we provide, our staff and policies need to be reflective of the world as it's changing around us."

New DEI Officer Tonia Trammell is developing a cultural competency curriculum to provide practical tools to facilitate creating safe spaces for LANC staff and clients.

Do You Need Affordable Health Insurance?

The COVID-19 crisis has caused many people in North Carolina to lose their health insurance. Legal Aid NC Navigators have been working tirelessly to connect them to quality, affordable health coverage through a special enrollment period. The majority pay less than $80 a month for quality health insurance. Many new plans and prices are available this year due to several new health coverage providers entering the Marketplace in North Carolina.

The American Rescue Plan has significantly brought down the cost of premiums for many folks across the state. Following the enactment of this plan, 4 out of 5 consumers assisted by Legal Aid have obtained coverage for $10 a month, or less. Nine out of 10 North Carolinians who chose a plan during the last Open Enrollment received financial assistance in paying for their plan.

Open Enrollment Begins November 1st, 2021

Legal Aid Navigators stand ready to assist as many North Carolinians as possible through safe, remote appointments.

Financial assistance is available to assist in paying for coverage, with 9 out of 10 North Carolina residents who enrolled in 2019 receiving help to pay their premiums.
