Take Advantage of Free Legal Information

Knowing your rights is the first step in protecting yourself. In addition to providing direct legal representation in civil matters to low-income people, Legal Aid NC offers Listen & Learn sessions on many legal topics, such as simple divorce. You will receive all the guidance and paperwork necessary to walk out of the Listen & Learn and into the courthouse.

These webinars are hosted monthly or quarterly at Legal Aid offices, churches, community centers, and other locations throughout the state. All are FREE, but advance registration is required due to space limitations. The Listen & Learns provide general legal information and guidance only; they do not provide you with specific, individual legal advice. You can also view the Listen & Learns on Facebook.

We offer intermittent clinics on additional legal topics, as well as a wide variety of audio, video, and written materials you can access online 24/7. These resources can give individuals the information they need to handle a basic legal issue without hiring an attorney. Please see the following two pages for more detailed information.

Wilmington Second Chance Project Holds Open House

Ayana Robinson, Legal Aid NC's Second Chance Practice Group Manager, is spearheading our expanded outreach in New Hanover County to assist low-income clients with expunction and driver's license restoration. New Hanover County is funding this new effort, Wilmington Second Chance Project. An open house was held in February to celebrate.

Expunction is the destruction of a criminal record by court order. The expunction (also called an expungement) of a criminal record restores the individual, in the view of the law, to the status he or she occupied before the criminal record existed.

Due to recent, significant changes in expunction law, people formerly unable to benefit from expunction may now qualify.

If you have a charge or conviction on your record, contact our helpline to find out if you're eligible for assistance: 1.866.219.LANC (5262).

Know Your Rights: Domestic Violence

Legal Aid of NC secures Domestic Violence Protective Orders (DVPOs) for survivors and provides other services to help them and their children fully recover and lead safe, independent lives. Also called a "50B order," a DVPO is an order of the court that grants protection from their abuser to a survivor of domestic violence. Many people refer to a DVPO as a "restraining order."

The order can direct the abuser to do, or refrain from doing, many things that include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Staying away from the victim.
- Not contacting the victim by phone, mail, email, or other means.
- Leaving their shared home.
- Not abusing the victim.

In some cases, the court may order temporary custody of children and/or arrange for visitation.

The basic process for getting a DVPO:

- The victim must file a complaint. Usually the victim makes a request for an Emergency Ex Parte Order at the same time. The victim is given a date within 10 days to come to court.
- The defendant (abuser) has been served. The sheriff usually does this.
- The victim goes to a "return" or "10-day" hearing. The purpose is for the judge to decide whether the temporary Ex Parte Order will be extended for up to one year.

Services are FREE for survivors.
All North Carolinians are eligible for our help.

Visit legalaidnc.org, click "Get Help," and enter "Domestic Violence" in the search feature to access numerous resources like the following:

- Detailed information about how to represent yourself at a domestic violence hearing.
- Videos on topics such as how to renew or modify a DVPO, domestic violence and the older adult, and how to file for divorce pro se (without the assistance of an attorney).
- A handbook for stalking victims that includes information on how to take legal action, make a safety plan, and maintain your quality of life.
- Detailed information on how to attend a free legal clinic on filing a child custody action and filing a simple divorce action in court without an attorney.

April Is Sexual Assault Awareness Month

There are almost 100 rape crisis centers located throughout North Carolina. These private, nonprofit organizations are committed to helping all members of the public regardless of age, gender, sexual identity, etc. Centers provide services such as free, confidential referrals to support groups, counseling, legal advice, and medical care. Sexual assault victims and their close family and friends can also access 24-hour hotlines to discuss their feelings and concerns with trained personnel.

Some rape crisis centers have staff who can accompany sexual assault survivors to medical exams, legal consultations, court proceedings, and interactions with law enforcement such as police interviews. Centers may also provide community outreach in the form of prevention education, advocacy, and prevention training.

For contact info for the rape crisis centers organized by county, visit nccasa.org/get-help.

Battered Immigrant Project Has New Name: Immigration Pathways for Victims (IMMPAV)

Our attorneys represent qualifying low-income immigrants who are survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking in immigration matters such as:

- Self-Petitions and Petitions to Remove Conditions for victims of domestic violence who are married to (or recently divorced from) U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents who abuse them.
- U Visas for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking.
- T Visas for victims of human trafficking.
- Applications to Adjust Status (to become a permanent resident) for self-petitioners, U visa holders, and T visa holders.
- Removal defense for qualifying victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking.

DO YOU NEED HELP? We have no income restrictions for survivors; all North Carolinians are eligible. Some resources are available in Spanish.

If you or someone you love is a survivor of domestic violence or sexual assault, call our toll-free helpline: 1.866.219.LANC (5262).

You can reach us from 8:30 AM–4:00 PM, Mon.–Fri. and 5:30 PM–8:30 PM on Mon. & Thurs.

Know Your Rights: Foreclosure

Almost 40% of the cases Legal Aid NC handles involve housing. We help North Carolinians avoid foreclosure by negotiating a loan modification with their lender and/or assisting with Chapter 13 bankruptcy. This type of bankruptcy will halt a foreclosure and stop the forced sale of an individual's home. Our attorneys provide representation to defend against foreclosure proceedings. We may also be able to assist with preventing the repossession of a mobile home.

Foreclosure is a legal process where a lender seeks to take property when the owner/borrower is behind in payments. The lender may actually take ownership of the property, and they usually sell it to pay off the debt. In a foreclosure, the owner/borrower loses whatever rights they had in the property.

By providing high-quality legal representation in foreclosure actions, our attorneys help preserve equity and credit ratings. We strive to make it cost-prohibitive for unscrupulous brokers and lenders to conduct business. We also provide community education to increase awareness of home finance best practices and the dangers of predatory lending.

Visit LawHelpNC.org today!

Using Technology to Benefit Our Clients

The Legal Aid NC Innovation Lab is coming soon! From personal computers to the internet, the “digital revolution” has profoundly changed the lives of most Americans. However, many groups such as rural and low-income people have had limited access to potentially life-changing technology.

We’re continually working to harness the power of tech to improve services to our clients. Our website offers numerous resources to the public on a wide range of legal topics. We’re also using Zoom and Facebook extensively to provide critical information to help North Carolinians protect their rights.

The mission of the Lab is to engage in purposeful innovation that expands access to justice and addresses inequities. Our vision is to create a dedicated hub for identifying and implementing new solutions for bridging the justice gap. The Lab will bring together community partners, staff, and justice tech experts to pursue projects that integrate technology and design best practices into legal service delivery that improves access to justice.

Executive Director Ashley Campbell and Scheree Gilchrist, Project Director/Managing Attorney for our Central Intake Unit/Helpline, are leading this effort. The Lab will create a space where other legal services organizations can learn from our work and adapt it to their own communities Stay tuned for more information on this exciting project!

See pages 4 & 5 for more information about our virtual resources.

Extra Food Stamps Have Ended

The extra food stamp (FNS/SNAP) payment ended In February 2023. These payments, officially called “Emergency Allotments,” helped families during the pandemic. Beginning in March of this year, people who qualify for the food stamp program only received their regular food stamp payment loaded to their EBT card. There was no second payment later in the month.

What you need to know:

You can keep food stamp benefits on your EBT card as long as you want. You just need to use the card once every 9 months to keep it active. Your regular food stamp benefit amount is based on your income and expenses. If you report any changes in how much you make and your expenses, this may help you get more food stamps.

Your food stamp benefits could be increased if you had any of these changes:

- Income: Did you lose work hours or have your pay cut?
- Shelter: Did your rent, mortgage, homeowner’s insurance, or property taxes increase?
- Dependent care: Are you paying more for childcare or for the care of a disabled adult?
- Medical expenses: Does anyone in your household who is 60 or older or disabled have medical costs over $35/ month that are new or have never been reported?
- Your address: This will not impact your benefit level, but you may miss important updates if your local DSS does not have your current address.

If you’re already receiving the maximum amount of food stamps in your regular monthly payment, reporting higher expenses won’t increase your food stamp benefits. Please see the chart below.

Maximum amount of food stamp benefit per household size:

of people in household	1	2	3	4
Maximum amount of food stamp benefit	$281	$516	$740	$939

How to report a change in your income or expenses:

To report changes, visit or call your local Department of Social Services (DSS):
www.ncdhhs.gov/divisions/social-services/local-dss-directory.

Although you do not have the right to request a fair hearing solely to dispute the end of emergency allotments, you can request a fair hearing if you believe your regular, monthly benefits were improperly calculated. Request a fair hearing by contacting your local county DSS. Hearings may be requested in person, by telephone, or in writing.

If you need legal assistance at a fair hearing, you can apply for help at Legal Aid of North Carolina by calling 1.866.219.LANC (5262).

How to check your monthly food stamp benefits:

- Visit www.ebtedge.com. Click on "More Information" under EBT Cardholder. You will be prompted to log in and/or register your account.
- Download and use the EBT Edge mobile app. You can download this app on Google Play or the App Store.
- Contact the North Carolina EBT Call Center at 1.888.622.7328.

Preventing Human Trafficking

The incidence of human trafficking is on the rise in our state. The goal of Legal Aid NC is to ensure that victims are reunited with their families, permanently protected from their traffickers, and freed from the burden of a criminal record related to their abuse.

With no income to speak of in Mexico, Ariana met people who promised to transport her to the United States where she could find work. Instead, they sold her to a brothel in a town on the U.S.-Mexican border.

After being sexually assaulted and beaten on multiple occasions over a period of several weeks, the brothel owners brought her to the United States, where she was forced to cook and clean for a woman involved in a trafficking ring. Other women in the house were forced to prostitute themselves.

The traffickers called Ariana's family members and threatened to harm her in an attempt to extort money. Ariana escaped, made contact with family members, and reported the traffickers to federal investigators.

Several months later, thanks to the investigation initiated after Ariana's testimony, the trafficking operation was raided. Authorities discovered a number of other undocumented people being held against their will.

Our client's continued cooperation in the prosecution of the traffickers led to several convictions. Ariana's complete cooperation in the investigation and prosecution, in spite of the danger to her personal safety and the extreme emotional trauma she experienced, entitled her to a T visa. These visas allow human trafficking victims to live and work in the United States and provide a path to permanent resident status.

Thanks to Legal Aid NC's continued advocacy on behalf of Ariana and her family, she was recently reunited with her young daughter, whom she had left in Mexico. The reunification was particularly poignant, because Ariana's original motivation for coming to the United States was being able to afford her daughter's schooling—an opportunity that Ariana herself had never had.

Please see page 9 for additional information on our Battered Immigrant Project, which has recently been renamed. The project is now called Immigration Pathways for Victims (IMMPAV).
